WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 21.

To THE PUBLIC.—After the 1st of July, 1851, the stage on the Daily American Telegraph (and as yet we me no other) will be, per quarter in advance, as follows: Pifty miles or under, 25 cents; over fifty and not over three hundred, 50 cents; over three hundred and not exceeding one thousand, 75 cents, &c. Any person wishing to be served for three months after the above date need only pay his quarter's postage, and send us a gold dollar and a silver quarter in a small letter-postage paid, of

THE NEW COSTUME FOR LADIES .- We look forward with pleasure to the day in which every as graceful and becoming as are the "frock and A fog of prejudice must be dissipated to make way for the improvement; but if our fair ones will it that will vanish.

The Kenosha (Wis.) Telegraph says:

There is no reform which is correct in the ory, which cannot find some independent spirit in Kenosha to reduce to practice. On Wednes-day afternoon the wives of two of our most respectable citizens appeared in short dresses and pants. The fashion on the whole is appropriate, and has some show of common sense in it We admire the independence of the ladies What business is it to the carping and carking crowd, if the ladies of this city are tired of using their dresses to sweep the crossings and side-walks? The fact is, "it's a go," and it will not be long before the novelty ceases to attract

The Geneva Gazette has the following: Day before yesterday it was our privilege to witness the appearance of some of the ladies of our village in the improved mode of dress, viz: with short dresses and Turkish pantaloons.

Yesterday morning, also, we understood they were worn by some ladies taking a morning We hope that this may be the beginning of a speedy and general introduction of an improvement so desirable. The advantages attending such an improvement in personal attire are obvious, and they must commend them-selves to the good judgment of the ladies of Geneva, as they have already done to those of Seneca Falls, Syracuse and other places.

The Springfield Republican says that several of the new dresses for ladies, consisting of the short dresses and trowsers, appeared in the streets of that town on Saturday.

The Syracuse Journal says: The dress has become too common here to attract much atten- ging in the navy works well. That is just tion, and all agree as to its neatness, and the improved appearance of the wearer.

The Syracuse Standard says: Altogether, this costume, call it Grecian, or Turkish, or what it. To the honor of the navy be it remem you will, is femininely graceful, convenient, tidy, and in harmony with the laws of healthand, if "fitness is the chief element of beauty," the most beautiful that our ladies ever wore.

maids talk against them, cynical editors sneer, and rude boys and big corner loafers abuse them, but short dresses and Turkish trowsers will come in vogue. The same prejudice that exists against them was once brought to bear against white hats and yellow kids; but these articles have triumphed, and they who once decried them are now their constant wearers.

The Troy Post says: We freely confess the change strikes us very favorably. In many places the dress is received with approval and admiration, while from no quarter do we hear a reason given for continuing the present inconvenient and often inelegant style of ladies' garments. The only weapon attempted to be used in opposition to the innovation is ridicule—a the effects of drunkenness. weapon quite as efficient in a bad cause as a good one, and more frequently used.

DREADFUL STEAMBOAT DISASTER .- On Monday mile below Philadelphia, the large and splendid up from New Castle, was run into by the Thos. Stockton. The Ohio's bow was knocked entirely off, and she sunk in about twenty minutes. When the water reached the upper deck the consternation became frightful, women and children running up and down, and uttering the most piteous lamentations. Many jumped overboard, and some it is feared were lost. Two or three are known certainly to have been drowned. dred.

Some got ashore on planks, some swam, and others found refuge in small boats. The relief ing, for the benefit of the several orphan asybeing extinguished by the water, persons ould not see where to go or what to do. The boat sunk so rapidly that nearly all the baggage floated and was lost. The Ohio has been nearly ruined by this disaster. The Stockton is also much injured.

OCEAN STEAMERS .- The Franklin brought to New York upward of ten thousand letters and six thousand newspapers. The Europa, with 12 o'clock. The following steamers, carrying mails sail from New York this month: Arctic, for Liverpool, May 24; Ohio, for Havana, Chagres, Panama, West Coast of South America, California, and China, May 26; Franklin, for Cowes and Havre, May 31; and the Cambria, from Boston for Liverpool, May 28.

A FAMILY QUARREL.—The controversy in Philadelphia-and, indeed, in Pennsylvaniabetween the two sections of the Whig party, continues and is quite spirited. The subject is the desire of one portion of the party for the displacement of Collector Lewis, and the appointment of some more popular gentleman. It appears that the collector, among other things of an offensive nature, spoke of certain mechanics of that city as "well enough in their sphere," but that they do not respond to this sentiment by commending him as well enough in his sphere. Senator Cooper, we believe, is looked to as the leader of the forces in opposition to the collector, and Governor Johnson as his chief friend and advocate. It is said the President has committed himself in favor of Mr. Lewis in such manner as precludes any action by him in the premises. If the great compromisers of the nation were only about now, what a world of good they might do, and what relief they might afford the President by arranging this matter in Philadelphia, instead of bringing it to the White House in Washing ton!

The retail stores of Washington are closed not some kind of uniformity be attained in this? gather the following sentences: Store-keepers have interests in common, as have the people in other pursuits; and we doubt not they are as liberal and kind toward each other. Can they not come to an understanding on this subject? The public convenience would not be impaired by such an arrangement as would be of advantage to themselves. It is rather hard for merchants, clerks, and salesmen to continue "from rosy morn till dewy eve" at their labors, while the rest of mankind are enjoying the pleasures and the repose of the evening. The present usage is conducive neither to their good nor to the public welfare, and therefore should well-dressed lady will be attired in garments be reformed. We cannot believe that there is not among our merchants the right sort of spirit pants" we see described in the northern papers. to do this; we know they are made of better metal. The thing need only be started.

BISHOP CAPERS is rapidly recovering from the severe attack of illness under which he has been laboring for the last fortnight, and his physician hopes that he will soon be able to resume his journey to Boonsville, to attend the meeting of the St. Louis Conference. He was on his way to that point when his journey was arrested by disease at Augusta, Ga.

The impaired health of Rev. Dr. HAMNER, of Baltimore, has made it necessary to procure for the 5th Presbyterian church in that city an associate pastor, and the Rev. Dr. SAMUEL WASHBURN, of New York, has been unanimously called. This church has always been under the care of Dr. Hamner, by whom it was founded some fifteen years since.

ITS DOINGS AND ITS COST .- The Fredericksburg Recorder, of the 19th, says the Virginia convention has been in session five months, has spent in the neighborhood of $150,000, and has done nothing but adopt some unimportant provisions of the constitution relating to the election of governor.

FLOGGING IN THE NAVY .- This law works well. On board the U. S. corvette Jamestown, with a complement of more than two hundred men, now in commission more than a month. not a single man has been reported for insubordination, neglect of duty, or intemperance. > A HORRIBLE BUT FALSE STORY .- A story is passing around the country through the newspapers, about a man's starving and beating his wife to death at Nashville; but there is following right upon its heels a total refutation. The husband is a poor, industrious mechanic; his wife was a miserable drunkard, and died from

WILLIS AND WEBB .- The Richmond Examiner says: "We have no doubt but that Willis is a very bad and a very despicable man; but we evening, at 8 o'clock, off Greenwich Point, one are certain that there is one man left in this world to whom Willis is a veritable cherub in steamer Ohio, of the Union Line, on her passage all respects; and that one is James Watson Webb."

DEATH BY DROWNING .- We learn that Mr. Wm. Brawner, of this city, was drowned off Maryland Point, in the Potomac, on Wednesday the mails for Europe, was to sail yesterday, at evening of last week. He had been troubled with fitsduring the afternoon; and about eight o'clock, while sitting on the bows of the schooner Good Intent, was taken, it is supposed, with an attack, and fell overboard. SODA WATER mollifies the warm weather very considerably; and the fountains are placed at proper distances apart, for the accommodation of moderate drinkers. Burr, at the corner of the Avenue and 12th street, and KIDWELL, on High street, above Bridge, in Georgetown, have it of fine quality, and iced and syruped most delightfully.

CAPON SPRINGS .- We have been informed that Mr. J. H. Kirkwood, of Brown's Hotel, will be the manager of Capon Springs during the approaching season. Mr. Kirkwood is competent and skillful in the highest degree, and withal a most accommodating and gentlemanly host. His ample experience, extensive acquaintance and great popularity will tell well upon the patronage of this establishment.

> Why should a quarrel like this ever insult the public gaze? We certainly have no enmity to either of the gentlemen implicated. But we have no hesitation saying that the sole damage which either party has done by his publications has been done to himself exclusively.

> Mr. Willis's assault upon Col. Webb, in the first instance, suggested to no one with whom we conversed any thing but astonishment at his own faculty of Pharisaic vituperation, and dis-gust at the meanness with which it had been exercised. We decidedly liked Webb all the better for it. And now the latter's counter-blast, although he felt himself no doubt greatly provoked, is yet so meanly and purely revenge ful as quite to shame us out of that tender likng. Decidedly, had we it in our power to injure a dog so fatally as that, we should prefer to leap in the dock first: how much more where a man was in question, and that man the husband of an innocent wife, the father of innocent and dependent children! Clearly then, every man who parades a private complain against another before the community, gains nothing by his motion but public contempt.
> Why do men instinctively side, so far at least as the assailant is concerned, with the person assailed, even when the charges are demonstrably founded in fact? Because their instincts of justice teach them, that however evil one may be, no other man's good ought to grow by that circumstance. The instinct of human unity, or humanity, is so strong in us, that when we see one man bringing home an imputation of evil to another, we insist that it be done with all tenderness and fraternal reluctance. If it be done with an air of triumph-if the party liscover any desire to enhance his own virtue by the contrast of his brother's shame, we consign him at once to the bottomless abyss of infamy. It is for this reason that men have such quick scent of Pharisaism, and discern the infallible carrion under the thickest wrappages of custom. It is for this reason, too, that we loathe so bitterly the technical informer, in comparison with whom cockroaches are clean and

HOME INDUSTRY.

The following is from the pen of a gentleman who is extensively and favorably known in this community, and whose experience entitles him to be heard:

Messrs. Editors: As a citizen of Washington, and one who feels a deep interest in the prosperity of the national metropolis, I have read with pleasure, during the last few days, published articles in relation to the policy and justice of supporting home labor.

This subject has been more than once, though privately, brought up for consideration, and the nicidal policy of sending money out of the city, when it could have been expended within her limits, with the same direct (to say nothing of the indirect) advantages to the capitalist has been fairly laid open to the men having the controlling influence, but often without altering their determination to spend the money

Few persons in this city, who have paid any attention to the industrial pursuits, can have failed to observe the custom, so prevalent with some of the capitalists of the District, to overook not only the claims of our own mechanics, but also their own individual interests, in spend ing the money they have acquired here to benefit the people of rich and prosperous cities, who do not nor can they feel any solicitude for the development of our mechanical resources. It is but just to remark, however, that many of our citizens entertain enlightened views on this subject. Within a short time past, and against the strongest opposing influence, one of our most prominent men not only carried out the principle of home protection to the letter, but had the satisfaction of feeling that his money was economically expended, and knowing that its distribution here increased the general wealth, and directly and indirectly benefited himself. In connection with this subject your article of Monday last, headed "steamboats," claims my

"It is a little singular" that citizens of this District should take the trouble to go to New ork for a steamboat, when they can obtain one at home equal in every respect, and at no greater cost. And what can be obtained now in Washington, in the way of steam or sailing vessels, could have been obtained at any tim during the last twenty years, and during that period the "inutility of going so far" has been requently demonstrated.

The time is rapidly approaching when capitalists here, as elsewhere, will discover that labor creates wealth; and if we would advance in population and prosperity, if we wish to elevate the intellectual and social condition of the mechanic and workingman, we must encourage and protect home industry.

TURKISH CIGARILLAS .- We really did not know until this morning how fragrant and delightful these dainty little smokables were! Mr. Downer, on the north side of the Avenue, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, sent us a little package of them, done up so beautifully that we did not like to open it; but as soon as the fragrant odor tickled the schneiderian membrane, we shouted in a transport of rapture. fire! fire! fire!" We shall hereafter always look upon the picture of a Grand Turk with a complacent pleasure, and have all the more charity for the weakness that attaches him to such delicate luxuries.
